THAT YOUNG KAISER.

General Negley's Opinion of Emperor Wilhelm.

HIS TOWERING AMBITION.

to Back His Purpose.

COMMERCIAL AIMS OF GERMANY.

Mercantile Enterprise to Support the Military Service.

HOW THE WORLD'S PEACE IS MENACED.

During his recent visit to Europe, General James S. Negley was a careful observer and investigator of European politics, and some of his most interesting observations were narrated to a reporter for THE DIS-PATCH during his visit to this city last week. General Negley's attention was principally attracted by the military and commercial energy of Germany, which, in his judgment, threatens the peace and prosperity of not only the other nations of Europe, but of the United States as well.

The ex-Congressman said:
"The German rivalry for commercial supremacy of the world is a policy of far-seeing statesmanship. Under the rule of the Emperor and Bismarck Germany has become a great military camp. It is being made more so as every month passes by. Its great standing army is mobilized and constantly ready for action. It may almost be said that it is in line of battle. The problem for the German rulers has been how this great military array is to be supported The solution is being found in the field of foreign commerce. The fruits of mercantile enterprise abroad are made available to support the military power at home. The patriotic spirit of unity which is aroused by national schemes of colonization and commercial influence in foreign lands is the surest preventive of dissension at home. These, I take it, are the motives which have prompted Wilhelm and Bismarek to strain every nerve in the extension of commercial supremacy.

PEALOUSLY CONTEMPLATED.

"The present spirit of the German Government has attracted the thoughtful attention and aroused the apprehensions of the politicians of England and France. In the latter country, particularly, the greatest uneasiness is felt. In Paris I talked with a number of the deputies, and found that they look upon the young Emperor as an exceedingly dangerous man for the peace of Earope.

"That young man is generally underestimated in this country. He is not the vain and superficial monarch whom many believe him to be. It is true that he is proud. He has great pride of race, and I am satisfied, from what I have seen and heard of him, that he has set the career of the Great Frederick before him as his model. He is ambitious to make for himself a name in history, to leave his impress on European poli-ties and European geography, and he has the courage, the brain and the resources to support his ambition.

"It was my good fortune to see the young Emperor during his visit last summer to England. Those foreign trips of his were not mere junkets for pleasure and the pro-motion of international good feeling. They had a deeper and more portentous meaning. The young Emperor desires to know foreign to see their generals their armies, their navies, their defenses and their weapons of war. You can guess why he is securing this knowledge. event of war you will see Wilhelm at the head of his own armies in the field. He will be his own commander-in-chief, as was his great ancestor, Frederick.

"At the grand review of the British army at Sandringham I obtained a place within a few feet of the German Emperor. I pushed in among the dignitaries. Nobody stopped me. I suppose they thought I was

SOME ECCENTRIC AMERICAN. "I devoted my opportunity to a close study of the Emperor and his staff. I tell you there is fight in every one of them. The Emperor is a man of great force of character. I noted his restless movements, his keen observation of everything going on around him, his evident intention to learn all the secrets of the British military service. He asked many questions and desired to understand everything connected with the drills, the infantry arms and the artillery. I saw him in company with many of the civil and military leaders of England, and I was satisfied that he was the best strategist among them. That is the high opinion I have formed of his purpose, his courage and his

A REVOLUTION IN WEAPONS. "The marvelous development in recent years of the destructive power of fire arms has revolutionized the art of war. In Paris I had the privilege of firing a mitrailleuse at the rate of 600 shots a second, turning it at the same time at three anige. Such a weapon will mow down men by the hundreds. No infantry regiment can stand be-fore it. It is operate by electricity, and the shots are fired by the pulsations of your thumb on a button. Military men have been nonplussed as to how they can cope with such weapons of death on the field of battle. All the Generals of Europe have been unable to answer that question. The young Emperor of Germany is the first to offer a solution. He proposes to equip a great cavalry service, the men to be armed with long lances, who shall dash forward suddenly, in open order, and hurl them-selves upon a line or a flank. Against such a force no solid square of infantry could stand with fixed bayonets, and it would evade, to a great extent, the destructive power of modern artillery. This instance only serves to illustrate my position, that the young Emperor possesses the most active and fertile military mind of our time.

GERMANY'S AGGRESSIONS. Germany means to push her military and commercial supremacy without much deference to the right or wrong of actions. I think Bismarck knew from the first that he was wrong in that Samoan affair, but he would have gone forward persistently had he not been met by the united protests of Eng-land and the United States. The German spirit of aggression deserves the attention of our statesmen in the fullest measure. We cannot foster our merchant marine without coming into frequent contact with this new commercial power.'

In connection with the Pan-American In-ternational Congress General Negley said : By the exercise of a careful fostering poliev Germany has built up an immen ciprocal trade with the republics and prin-cipalities of South America, and Bismarck can hardly look with equanimity upon the practical fruition of Secretary Blaine's great scheme to checkmate Germany's dom-ination of trade relations with South America, as implied in the visit of representa-States. It is a foregone conclusion that the showing made by the United States of her manufactures will direct millions of money annually from the European market. Best of all, there is a plan which nonplusses the European diplomats and commercial princes. It is a competition unlooked for and for which no provision has been made. For Germany and Spain to sell wares at a loss to retain the South American market would not be a winning policy. Hence it is that Europe ponders Blaine's opening address to the International Congress and fails to extract any promise from the situation. The United States is a commercial menace to the rest of the world."

BREWERS' TROUBLES.

The Sanner Brewing Company New Located Here-Workmen Expect Them to Help in Reducing Working Hours. The Banner Brewing Company, of Cincinnati, has established an agency in this city. Some importance is attached to this by Brewers' Union No. 22, which expects that by operating extensively here the company may help them in inducing local master brewers to favorably consider the movement which is now on foot among the brew-ers for a reduction of the day's time of labor A Ruler With Courage and Ability to ten hours, The Banner Brewing Company is the only union brewery in Cincinnati. It has lately established a branch establishment in St. Louis, and since the D. A. 17, K. of L., and the American Federation of Labor are both supporting it while antagonizing the others, considerable result is looked for in support of organized labor. The position as regards the operative brewers and masters in this city remains unchanged. Since delegates from the com-mittees of the Central Labor Union, Trades Council and Brewers' Union 22, called upon some 10 or 12 breweries on last Thursday to arrange for a conference on the matter of the reduction of the hours of labor, nothing the reduction of the hours of labor, nothing has been heard from the masters. The other question discussed, that of the cessation of Sunday work, excepting such as is absolutely necessary, as, for example, that of the maltsters, was favorably received by some of the employers, while others insisted it should continue.

The first of Example in S. Vileack, standard of the continue.

The firm of Frauenheim & Vilsack stand alone in that they for some time have conceded their men the ten hour scale and abolished Sunday work. The matter is at present in abeyance, as the Trades Council has not dismissed the committees, and it is expected that the concessions demanded on behalf of the men will be granted without much trouble. No decision as to what may ensue in the event of a refusal to the demands of the committees has been arrived at.
The operatives are quite willing that Sunday work and the brewery bars should both be abolished, and hold that the employment of a few more men would serve to accomplish on Saturday what is now performed

A large number of friends were present.

HITHER AND THITHER.

Movements of Pittsburgers and Others of Wide Acquaintance.

-Thomas W. Davis, of Columbus, Vice President of the National Progressive Union, is in the city. Mr. Davis has lately returned rom a round of visits among the men of the Clearfield and Punxsutawney districts and reports the condition of coal mining affairs as being good. He claims that his Union has a larger membership by one-half than the N. D.

A. 135, basing his estimate on the number of delegates from each sent to the recent conven-tions. Speaking of coal mining affairs in the Spring Valley region, Mr. Davis said that W. L. Scott had now antagonized the miners as far as it was in his power, and he gave it as his opinion that the coal magnate would find it to his interest to make the required concession to his men rather than that he should incur the expense of keeping his mine open, or throwing altogether out of work as he threatens. Davis is here to arrange for meetings in port of his Union at Mansfield, Tom's Run, Banksville.

-E. M. Kiser, of Sanborne, Dak., is guest at the Seventh Avenue. Mr. Kiser said that the public lands were being very slowly occupied by settlers, and thought that when the Sioux reservation was thrown up next year for settlement that his State would be greatly thrown back. Meanwhile, business was fairly good, and agricultural interests in a fair way to improve. Immigrants were arriving in considerable numbers, principally Swedes, and Scandinavians in general, whom, he said, made the most desirable settlers, as they were steady, honest and progressive.

He has pre-vious experience as a pension agent, and, though he has not sent in any formal applica-tion for the position, his name is said to have been not unfavorably received by the President. Though a staunch Republican, Major Nevin has not of late years taken an active part in politics.

The Convention of the Local Diocesan Union at Irwin To-Day.

Use of Side Boards in Social Clubs May Come Up for Action.

A FULL PROGRAMME OF THE MEETING

The regular annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, of the Pittsburg diocese, will be held to-day at Irwin. It will be the largest convention ever held by the union. There will be over 100 delegates present. They represent about 1,200 total abstainers in this vicinity. Among the prominent delegates who Father Canevin, will be present from President. this city are Rev. Father J. F. Regis Canevin and Father M. M. Sheedy, The representatives from the three societies connected with the latter's church are M. J. McMahon, J. McGuire, J. J. Malonev and the Misses McDonald and Walsh. Father Lambing's cadet society will send three delegates. The convention will open with service in in Frather Graham's church. Solemn high mass will be celebrated at 9:30 o'clock by Father Canevin.

Father Lambing, of Wilkinsburg, will be the deacon and Father Connery, of Alpsville, sub-deacon of the mass. Father Gra-ham will deliver the BE sermon of welcome.
The delegates will then adjourn to Thomson's Hall, where the business of the convention will be transacted. The first business to come up will be the reading of officers' reports. P. P. W. Joyce, W. Joyce, of the Secretary. Southside, is Secretary and T. D. Hensler, Southside, is Secretary and T. D. Hensler, of Irwin, is Treasurer of the union. The President, Father Canevin will then deliver his annual address. The election of delegates to the National Diocesan Union will then take place. The union will meet in this city the first week of August, 1890. After the election of delegates the officers of the local union will be chosen for the coming year.

Father Canevin is opposed to being a candidate for re-election. In his official bulletin for September he advocates the election of a layman to the office, which he says could be filled by one as well as by a priest. He also agitates the establishment of reading rooms to attract young men and keep them out of saloons and other places. In the evening a public meeting will he held. It will be preceded by a short parade.

SIDEBOARDS IN CLUBS. About the most important matter that may come before the convention will be the question of sideboards in social clubs. At the convention of the National Union in Cleveland a resolution was passed denounc-ing the sideboard matter. Father Sheedy is a member of the Columbus Club of this eity, and if it is decided at the meeting to-day to make members either give up the club or the union he will leave the former. An effort will be made at the convention to raise $500 to complete the union's sub-scription to the Father Mathew chair en-downent fund. The Pittsburg diocese guaranteed $1,200 of the necessary $50,000 to endow the chair. The money will be turned over to the Washington University on the centennial anniversary of Father Mathew's birth in October next.

TO EXAMINE DRUG CLERKS.

The State Pharmaceutical Board Will Meet Here To-Day.

A. B. Burns, of Montrose, Vice President of the State Pharmaceutical Examining Board, and Secretary H. P. Cochrane, of Lancaster, arrived in the city last night to attend the meeting of the board to-day. They will be joined by President Alonzo Robbins, of Philadelphia, to-morrow morning, who will assist in the examination of the papers.

The board will meet to-day in the College of Pharmacy, and will examine applicants for certificates. The applicants will come from all parts of the State. They will be given a practical examination of 100 ques-tions in all matters pertaining to pharmacy. A druggist or manager must answer 75 per cent of them correctly, and a qualified assistant 50 per cent. The most important questions will be those relating to the mixture of poisons. Very often a careless physician will write a prescription in which there will be too much poison. A prescrip-tion clerk must understand the maximum dose and use his judgment in compounding the chemicals. If applicants cannot do this they are not given a certificate.

The board will meet to-morrow and examine the papers. This will take them several days, as there will be about 2,500 of them. After doing this, they will take up all questions of infringement. If a person who has not a certificate is reported to them as selling medicines, he is told to stop the practice. If he does not do so he is prose-

MINISTERIAL ALLIANCE.

The Clergymen Differ as to England's Established Church.

A slim attendance distinguished the recommencement of the monthly sessions of the Ministerial Alliance yesterday, Rev. John W. Sproull, presiding with Rev. B. F. Woodburn as Secretary. The latter read a pleasant paper upon "Impressions of a Summer Tour," in which London, Eng., was interestingly described. He said that drinking and profanity were not as common as usually supposed, but that in his opinion progress was retarded by the exist-ence of a Royal Family and an Established

Rev. E. R. Donehoo also gave his impressions of London. He thought that there was considerable drinking in the metropolis. He also said that he believed that the Established Church had done and was doing a great work. The question of the maintenance of the Alliance will be decided

At the instance of Agent O'Brien Frederick Brockhoff was arraigned before Mayor Pearson, of Allegheny, yesterday, for neglect of his two children. The mother is in the insane department of the City Poor Home, and the children have been cared for by an aunt. It is alleged that Brock-hoff, who works at the Speer plow works, has failed to provide for the little ones. On his giving an order on his employers for $3 a week, for the benefit of his children, he was discharged.

other places lighted by electricity on the Northside were in darkness last night, OVER 100 DELEGATES TO BE THERE While an important meeting of the Water Committee was being held the incandescent lights flickered and went out. The members the committee sat in the darkness for about 20 minutes and then adjourned. The cause of the lights being extinguished was due to an accident at the power house of the Allegheny Light Company. The main steam pipe running from the boilers to the engines burst with a report that could be heard for blocks. The steam and hot water were scattered over the dynamos and switch board, and rendered them temporarily useless. The cause of the accident was due to a shortage of gas.

The City Property Committee had just met when the light went out. The Market Committee also were left in the dark, and the Water Committee had just convened when they had to stop. They had begun to consider a number of proposals for two new engines for the pumping station on Troy Hill. There were four bids in, ranging from $2,000 to $2,500. The Finance Committee met and passed resolutions transferring $500 from the con-tingent fund to the market department and tingent fund to the market department and $4,000 to the road department. An ordinance was ordered printed for the issuance of $117,000 in renewal bonds hearing 3½ per cent interest. The ordinance providing for the issue of $1,000,000 in bonds for street improvements was laid over for one month. Comptroller Brown's report showed: Receipts for September, $46,232 96; balance on hand on September 1, $359,663 74; disbursements during the month, $131,378 95. Balance on October 1, $274,-517 75. 517 75.

Yesterday afternoon the sub-committee of the Park Committee viewed the Watson property on the Perrysville road.

THE CHILDREN RETURNED.

The Neighbors Said Dorning Was Hones and a Kind Father.

William J. Dorning and his wife, Essie, were arraigned before Magistrate McKenna, at the Central station yesterday forencon, to answer charges of drunkenness. After hearing the evidence against them the magistrate sent them back to their cells in order that he might further inquire into their habits and learn whether Mr. Dorning's aunt, Mrs. Jane Robinson, was a proper person to care for the children. At that time Alderman McKenna did not know that the smaller children were in the care of Matron Brennan. After his return to his office on Penn avenue, Alderman Mc-Kenna was visited by some of Dorning's neighbors. They averred that William was poor but honest, that he had a hard struggle to make a living, and that when he was not intoxicated he was a kind husband and father. They said that the baby, only four weeks old, needed the mother's care. On this representation Alderman McKenne. On this representation Alderman McKenna ordered the discharge of the prisoners, and the children were returned to them. Agent Dean was present during the session of the police court, but he made no complaint against Dorning and wife. He said that he was satisfied if the magistrate was. He has not, however, entirely dropped and Home of the Brave. WORKERS WHO ARE NOT DISCOURAGED

Especially in the Land of Dyspeptics

A move in the right direction is the Avery Trades School for colored people in Allegheny, and it is unfortunate that the projectors are not meeting with the encouragement they deserve. It has been announced that on the 15th inst., or thereabouts, an evening class in drawing will be formed, but the Secretary of the board, Mr. A. J. Billows, states that all enlargements and improvements are contingent. It is intended to amplify as fast as finances will cover such amplification, but at present the board is moving slowly. The general term of the school opened yesterday, but although the prospect is not discouraging, Mr. Billows states they cannot do everything they would like to do at present.
Superintendent J. P. Wagner, who is now imparting information in carpentry, stair building, cabinet making, architecture, etc., is regarded as thoroughly competent, and as he has been prominently connected with organized labor, for sometime Secretary of the United Carpenters' Council, he is able to so conduct the school as to have the minimum amount of friction as to have the minimum amount of friction between mechanics already fledged and those who are as yet downy. Instruction is free, save that students' work is utilized where it can be, so that the school has neither certain income nor endowment to depend upon. The addition of algebra, drawing and geometry is desirable, but it is the intention to crawl until the management is assured that it can walk. assured that it can walk, MAKING YOUNG CARPENTERS,

Mr. Billows states that so far the effort has been confined to making young men practical carpenters, no other branch baving as yet been attempted. He gives the case of one young man, in fact, a mere boy, who took a few months' instruction last year, and who is now earning $1 50 a day, as an evidence that the knowledge of the art is rapidly and practically acquired in the school. He states that it is under advisement to start classes in sewing and cooking, but as teachers' salaries are high in the latter department, there is no certainty when the object will be attained. The board has been object will be attained. The board has been discussing the matter considerably, and it has decided that a cookery school is the most important. The members reason that almost any girl may learn enough about sewing to get along in a family in these days when the sewing machine is universal and when fancy work can be howely cheerer than even the can be bought cheaper than even the Chinese can make it by hand. But there are but few women who can cook, and some who think they can are a long way off their Cooking is a fine art. There are women who have genius who can manage to invent and season dishes and engineer variety on slim resources, but most of them are unable to broil a beefsteak properly, and not one American woman in a dozen knows how to make good soup, and good material is ordinarily cast into the slop. American women can make cakes of all kinds and pies.

MEN MUST HAVE VARIETY. That man cannot live by bread alone, i That man cannot live by bread alone, is true, in physical as well as in spiritual sense. He must not only have meat and various vegetables, but they must be cooked so as to be palatable, digestable and nutritious, and a girl who may be able to catch an eligible husband by her musical, conversational, terpsichorean and other powers will often find that good cookery is necessary to held him effects be identified.

There is always an unsupplied demand for good cooks, and will likely be so long as American girls regard housework as degrading. Even a moderately good cook can make a bettery salary than can many men who follow mechanical trades, and com-bined with other household work cooking should rank among the fine arts.

At present the only resource the Avery Trades' School has, aside from donations, is the sale of the work of its pupils. So far there has been no trouble to sell the work, it being honestly made and of good material. Care is taken not to offend the sensibilities of extreme trade unionists, and the superintendent is instructed in this respect. far there has been no friction. The difficulties that surround boys in search of a trade nowadays are equally as grave as those attending the securing of a university education, even among white boys, and they are much greater among colored youths. Many people seem to regard it as a matter of course that the mass of colored people shall always be Gibeonites—hewers of wood and drawers of water, but though they make excellent hod carriers, they also acquire skill in trades, though at present the fear that they will supplant the whites in rolling mills seems somewhat premature. This lack of skill in the mechanical arts is their chief drawback in the race for wealth and position. time will doubtless come when agriculture will again be given the post of honor, and the African can win there what he once

IRON MILLS IDLE.

A Howl About the Shortage of Gas on the

. Southside. A number of the iron mills on the Southside have shut down on account of an insufficient supply of natural gas, caused by the cold snaps. The supply is also very short in consumers' houses, and there is considerable complaint against the gas companies. The plate and sheet mills at Sligo were idle all day, and the men had to return to their home. At the Republic and Ameri-can Iron Works there was considerable dissatisfaction among the men, who had to quit. In Oliver & Roberts' Wire Mill there was not enough gas to warm the employes. The officials of the Philadelphia Company stated that the short supply was caused by making new connections.

The Golden Jubilee at St. Philomena's Closes Last Night. The Golden Jubilee at St. Philomena Church was brought to a fitting close last night by a beautiful display of fireworks. The church steeple was covered with fancy lighted lanterns, flags, etc. Over 100 rockets were used and a continual blaze of red fire gave the church a very picturesque The officers of the Salvation Army of Western Pennsylvania met last night in direct into the basin, from which the supply for the engines is drawn.

"There is a decided objection to the emptying of the water into Bedford basin and its subsequent retaking by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more or less local impurities in the Bedford basin, besides the priodical allusions to the unsafe condition of the reservoir, which, although unfounded in fact, have a disturbing effect upon people living in that locality. There will be an automatic governor of the influent chamber which will regulate absolutely the flow of water through the pipes and the water will be sent to consumers in just as pure condition as it leaves Hiland reservoir. I should imagine that the influent chamber will cost in the vicinity of $3,000, although no bids have been received."

ceived."

"What will be done with the disused basin, Mr. Brown?"

"Why, the water will be drawn off and the reservoir thoroughly dried out, and then, I believe, Chief Bigelow will park the property. Thus we will have another park in the city in a place very much needed."

Controller E. S. Morrow corroborated Superintendent Brown's statement that the basin would be transformed into a park, and said that the idea had been in contemplation for several months. Being asked for data as to the cost, etc., of the Bedford basin and the date of its erection, Mr. Morrow delved into some musty, fusty documents, but was unable to find any specific accounts. Finally, however, the "Business Directory for Pittsburg and Allegheny," Morrow delved into some musty, fusty documents, but was unable to find any specific accounts. Finally, however, the "Business Directory for Pittsburg and Allegheny," issued by Isaac Harris and printed by A. A. Anderson, in 1844, was found to contain some information upon the subject. Mr. Morrow stated, however, that the engineer who erected the Bedford basin was Colonel McCleilan, father of the Drs. McCleilan. Mr. Harris' statistical remarks upon the city water matters are as follows:

We have now in operation two water works for supplying the city. The cost of the old works (Brilliant, supposedly), built in 1828, including pipes laid, was $222,000; cost of new (Bedford, supposedly), excluding pipes laid, $241,000, and these are much the largest. The capacity of the basins of the old force 1,344 galloms per minute through a 15-inch pipe, into the basins, 116 feet above the river; the new, 4,220,000 every 24 hours through 29-inch pipes into basins probably 150 feet above the river. It is contemplated to supply the city of Allegheny with water from the new basins, by laying a main pipe across under the Allegheny river.

Gripp's Victims. Magistrate Gripp sent Charles Henry 30 lays to the barrel works as a vagrant and gave Charles Forbes the same term for steal ing the overcoat of a man named Taggart, at the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Bailway depot, and Annie Shafiin and Marie Ann Hanlin got the same dose on charge of keeping a disorderly house on Clay alley.

An Influent Pipe to Answer the Purpose of the Bedford Basin—Chief Bigelow Advertises for Bids.

The Bedford Basin is to be abandoned, so far as its use by the city Water Department is concerned, a new wrinkle having been discovered by which a small influent chamber can subserve the same purpose as the huge basin. The advertisement for bids for an influent chamber were published yesterday by Chief Bigelow, of the Department of Public Works.

Superintendent Geo. Brown, of the Water Department, explained the proposal for bids yesterday to a DISPATCH reporter. He said: "The proposed influent basin will be a sort of a well, 11x14 and 12 feet deep. It will have to be of substantial character, on account of the action of the water upon the will have to be of substantial character, on account of the action of the water upon the sides. As is generally known, the water which supplies the Bedford pumping station comes from the Hiland reservoir by means of large pipes, and at present goes direct into the basin, from which the supply for the engines is drawn.

"There is a decided objection to the emptying of the water into Bedford basin and its subsequent retaking by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more less least limited by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more less least limited by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more less least limited by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more less least limited by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more less least limited by the influent pipe to the engines as there have always been more less than any other city. of getting to and from the city, but this will in a few short months be a thing of the past.

East Liberty, Shadyside and Oakland all suffered alike until the cable lines were put in operation, thus enhancing and improving property. The Fifth avenue cable has been running about one year, and it is almost impossible to purchase a desirable lot or piece of ground along the line at a price convenient to all desiring to get a home. A new field must be opened, and several wideawake business men realizing this fact have purchased a large tract of beautifully laying land on the hill to be known as Herron Hill Park and sub-divided it into lots 40x100 feet fronting on nice wide streets and extending back to 24-foot alley. This coming residence place has been placed in the hands of the well-known real estate firm of Mesars. Black & Baird. Herron Hill Park is just at the terminus of the Wylie avenue cable road and within 15 minutes ride of the postoffice, thus making it a very desirable and convenient place for business men, clerks and salesmen, who can go home for dinner. The elevation is high and healthy, city water and other conveniences. By buying now and building you can get easy terms, and be settled before prices go up, which are sure to enhance, when the cable road is completed. Mesars. Black & Baird will gladly give full particulars and colored plan of this magnificent residence place to all calling at their office, No. 95 Fourth ave.
